"WELL, Frank," he cried dejectedly, "your wife! Do you mean to say you are married?"

"Huh?" boasted Frank. "Married? Me? See that kid? Well, he's mine." Sayville advanced and shook hands cordially with the young woman while Dougherty, in obedience to the high-pitched insistence of his offspring, led the child over to let him examine the "dare-devil."

"Oh, Mr. Sayville," the young woman panted, almost breathless from the tenderness of her emotion. "I've been such a wicked little fool! And Frank has been so grand—but it's all right now. Only I was wicked."

FRIENDS THOUGHT COULD NOT LIVE

Alice Wilson Was Unconscious Hours at a Time and Mind a Blank

A startling statement was made recently by Mrs. Alice Wilson, wife of Charles E. Wilson, who resides at No. 327 Fort Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., regarding Plant Juice, the great system tonic. She said:

"If anyone knows what stomach trouble is, it is surely myself. For the past eight years I have suffered from severe pain; at times I would become so bad that I was unconscious for hours at a time and my mind would fail me for days—a perfect blank. My circulation would almost stop, and my hands and feet would become cold and clammy. Food would not be on my stomach and I was compelled to subsist on liquids and a very light diet. I lost flesh and my weight was reduced from 135 to 115 pounds. My neighbors did not expect me to live and gave me up to die. My husband, who was employed at the Clark Mills, brought me home a bottle of Plant Juice. Before I had used one-half of it I began to feel better and my strength to return. I have used Plant Juice now for the past five weeks and want to state publicly that I have entirely regained my health. I can eat any kind of food and digest it perfectly and have not an ache or pain in my entire body. I am doing all of my household work for the first time in the past eight years and am so happy that I sing from joy. For I am a well woman once more—entirely cured and I give all praise for same to Plant Juice. I am convinced that your medicine is to all of my friends."

Such words as these are being received every day from enthusiastic users of Plant Juice who have been cured from ailments of long standing and are only too glad to lend their names in testimonial thereof. "Plant Juice is sold at El Paso at Kelly & Pollard's drug store. Adv."

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

MISS WINNIFRED GREENWOOD, who appears as "Elsa Dean" in "The Happy Wanderer," a "Flying A" feature just released, does not believe that, in real life, marrying a man to reform him is a safe venture. She says, instead, "If you love the man, and he needs reforming, do it before you marry him."

MATERNAL LOVE BASIS FOR RED FEATHER PLAY.

Hobart Bosworth is the star of Red Feather's latest five-part drama, "The Target." The subject sets out to demonstrate that every man's friend will forsake him, deceive him and betray him when personal desires interfere. Such an honest lawyer, whose platform is made up of two planks—truth and sincerity.

GERALDINE FARRAR IN THIRD PHOTO PLAY.

Geraldine Farrar's third photo play season will be seen in local playhouses, "Maria Rosa" is the pictureization of a Spanish play well known in Europe. It is of interest to recall that it was during the filming of "Maria Rosa" that Lou Tellegen, now Geraldine Farrar's husband, first met the Metropolitan opera singer. Lou Tellegen played in "Maria Rosa" during its presentation in New York and was consulted at the Lasky studios concerning it.

Wallace Reid, who played Don Jose to Miss Farrar's "Carmen" and Pedro de Cordoba, Miss Farrar's leading man in "Temptation," both are in the cast of "Maria Rosa."

Little Jane Lee, the unique child actress who appears in William Fox pictures, has been in Jamaica for months, where she has lived in the open air and in the water. To avoid becoming as brown as a little Indian, she wears a Mohammedan costume and goes about hooded and cowered like a little monk.

MAUDE SEATZ QUILTS STAGE FOR MOVIES.

Pictorialism has once again been favored with the pleasing personality of Maude Seatz, one of the first stars of the legitimate to grace the screen. Several years ago Miss Seatz appeared in multiple reel films, then a new thing to the market, and in these special releases scored an instantaneous success.

Winnifred Greenwood.

An old time favorite with silent drama fans, she started in with the Selig company when the motion picture world was young, but now is with the American-Mutual forces.

second only to the fame accorded her on the speaking stage. Maude Fealy first won distinction by her portrayal of "Eunice" in "Quo Vadis," and her success was such that she was engaged by William Gillette to support him in "Sherlock Holmes." Later, Miss Fealy enacted the roles of Hilbert created by Elton Terry in support of the great Sir Henry Irving.

The Mother Goose book, went on Charlie. "This is the way it was."

"Humpty Dumpty sat on the wall, Humpty Dumpty had a great fall. All king's horses and all the king's men Cannot put Humpty together again."

"Why can't they put him together again?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Where is Humpty? Let me have a look at him. If his shell is only cracked I can mend it with glue. Where is he?"

"On the other side of the stone wall," said Charlie. "He fell over or rolled backward, and he must be all broken up by now."

"Let us hope for the best," said the rabbit gentleman. "He may be only cracked. Humpty Dumpty may be, and if the glue I have for Nurse Jane will mend a cracked egg, it will mend a cracked egg. I must have a look."

"Up on top of the wall jumped the rabbit gentleman. Then he looked down on the other side. He looked around for Humpty Dumpty."

"Uncle Wiggily saw some broken egg shells. Then he looked some more and rubbed his eyes."

"This is queer," he said. "If the egg broke, the white and yellow would ought to have run out on the ground. But I don't see any. That must have been a hollow egg."

"Just then the rabbit gentleman heard: 'Peep, Peep, Peep-peep-cheep-cheep.'"

"My goodness me makes alive and some cornmeal pudding," cried the bunny uncle. "Who is that?"

"It is I, Humpty Dumpty," was the answer, and out from a bush ran a cute, little, fluffy, downy chicken.

"Are you Humpty Dumpty?" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course," peeped the little chicken. "I was inside the eggshell all the while, just waiting to come out. And when Charlie set me on the wall I rolled off, cracked my shell and here I am. I peeped out!"

"Of course, it isn't just like in the book," said the bunny uncle. "But it's better. For though I sat on the wall and had a great fall, I don't need all the king's horses and all the king's men to put Humpty together again."

"No, and you don't need any of my glue," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh.

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

"Uncle Wiggily and Humpty-Dumpty."

By HOWARD L. GARIS.

"UNCLE WIGGILY, would you mind bringing me some glue when you come home from your walk this afternoon?" asked Nurse Jane Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, as she saw the rabbit gentleman leaving his hollow stump bungalow one day.

"Glue?" asked Uncle Wiggily, curious like. "I hope you are not going to put it in my chair, so when I sit down I will stick fast, and not be able to get up again."

"Oh no!" laughed Miss Fussy Wuzzy. "Though if you keep on going out so often, the way you do, I'll need a bit of sticky flipper, or something like that, to keep you at home."

"Oh! I have to go off to have adventures now and then," said the bunny uncle, smiling so that his nose twinkled like a moonbeam shining in the water.

"But I'll bring you the glue, all right," Nurse Jane. "What is it you want to stick together?"

"A broken teacup," answered the muskrat lady. "I knocked a teacup off the table and it broke. But I can stick the pieces together with glue, and it will be almost as good as new."

"Good!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "That's the way to do it. Then he set off over the fields and through the woods to get the glue."

He found some in the doll doctor's toy shop, where the monkey doctor, who had used it to fasten together all the playthings the animal boys and girls broke.

"That's just the glue for Nurse Jane's cup," said the doll doctor. "It will mend anything."

"That's what we want," said Uncle Wiggily.

Well, the old gentleman rabbit was going along, hoping he would meet with an adventure before he reached his hollow stump bungalow, when, all at once, he heard a sort of crowing noise and a clucking, and a voice said: "Where is he?"

"Oh, dear, I might have known it would happen! I should never have let you sit on top of the wall, Humpty. Now look what you've done! Oh, what will my mother say?"

"Hi! That sounds like Charlie, the little rooster chap," said Uncle Wiggily. "I wonder what has happened to him, and who Humpty can be? I guess I'll look and see."

The bunny uncle went on a little farther and, coming to a stone wall, he saw, on one side of it, Charlie Chick, and the little rooster chap's tail feathers were all squeezed and crooked as though he were in great trouble indeed.

"Why, Charlie," cried Uncle Wiggily. "What's the matter? Is Arabella, your sister, lost?"

"No, no, Uncle Wiggily," answered Charlie. "But I had Humpty Dumpty with me, and he sat up on the wall, just as he did when he was out with Mother Goose. But he fell off and now he's broken and he's dead. I fear he never will be himself again."

"My! My! What's all this?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I never heard of Humpty Dumpty or his fall before. The table and why can't he be himself again? If it's anything that is broken I can mend it, for I have some glue to mend Nurse Jane's broken cup, and I can mend Humpty Dumpty."

"Oh, it's very kind of you, I'm sure," said Charlie, politely. "But it can't be done. You see, Humpty Dumpty is an egg. My mother, Mrs. Chick-truck, would me to take him to Mrs. Wobblewobble, the duck lady. But on the way I stopped here to rest and I let Humpty sit upon the wall."

"Well, what happened then?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as Charlie stopped, to mope a little cross, and flap his wings.

"It happened just as it tells about in
